Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

The Annual Catholic Appeal’s theme Come follow me ... and share the Word draws from Pope Francis’ invitation to all Catholics to be missionary disciples. All of us are called to follow Jesus as His disciples and to carry His Word into the world through our words and deeds.

As members of the Lumen Cordium Society, you are a source of great pride for me. You have heard the Holy Father’s invitation and through your sharing of time, talent and treasure, you have tried to make the Lord present in our world that is so deeply in need of Him.

Across the years, the Lumen Cordium Society has contributed the generous sum of $118 million. A monetary amount, however, only tells part of the story. Behind the numbers are people who give generously, people in need who benefit greatly, and the Church whose mission is enabled to go forward. Thank you.

This issue of the Lumen Cordium magazine will help you to understand the larger story of the Annual Catholic Appeal. In addition to the lead story that develops this year’s focus on sharing the Word, there are other stories about Kolbe House, Catholic Relief Services and a committed family, the Waltons. Also included is an Honor Roll of our generous donors. These articles shed light on the good things that the Lumen Cordium Society has been able to achieve with God’s help. I hope that these stories will be informative and encouraging for you.

May God who has blessed us with so many good things keep us ever mindful, grateful and generous.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Archbishop of Chicago
A TRADITION OF GIVING

Shortly before his death in 1996, Joseph Cardinal Bernardin established the Lumen Cordium (Light of Hearts) Society in recognition of the women and men whose examples of stewardship stand as true testimonies to our faith, alive in the Archdiocese of Chicago.

In 1997, soon to become Francis Cardinal George, OMI, gave roots and inspiration to the fledgling Lumen Cordium Society. Under his guidance, the Society thrived and became the pre-eminent fundraising group for the Archdiocese of Chicago.

In 2014, Most Reverend Blase J. Cupich was installed as Archbishop of Chicago and elevated to Cardinal-Archbishop in 2016. Confident that our sharing of Christ will bring a joy the world cannot take away, Cardinal Cupich looks forward to working together with the Lumen Cordium Society in a partnership of generosity to build vital, vibrant, life-giving communities of faith in our Archdiocese.

OUR MISSION

The Lumen Cordium Society recognizes the unique history, personality and strength of the Archdiocese of Chicago. It celebrates the inspired generosity and vision of both the laity and clergy that came before us, building hundreds of spires that reach to heaven throughout Cook and Lake Counties as testimony to their faith.

In the 21st century, the Society welcomes those who, like their ancestors, know in their hearts that they have a mission from birth to leave something that will live long after them as testimony to the faith and vision of these times.

Graced by the Gospel and spirit of Jesus Christ, the Society’s purpose is to establish a legacy of strengthening the faith and spiritual future of new generations of Jesus’ disciples.
Thank you for being a member of the Lumen Cordium Society. Without regard to race, religion or nationality, your gift to the Annual Catholic Appeal helps Catholic Relief Services alleviate the worst kind of human suffering and provides critical assistance to people in need in more than 100 countries.

Currently, Catholic Relief Services is providing life-saving aid to hundreds of thousands of refugees and migrants who have fled horrific violence and unrest in Syria, Yemen, Venezuela and across parts of Central America.

In Syria, the country’s civil war has taken an alarming toll on millions of people in the past eight years, which has resulted in the largest refugee crisis of our time. The ongoing fighting and instability continue to force people from their homes. In the first half of 2018, nearly 700,000 people were displaced by the conflict and many refugees are dependent solely on humanitarian aid for their basic needs. Since the war began, a staggering 13.1 million people have been displaced, with 5.6 million seeking refuge in neighboring countries.

In Yemen, one of the Middle East’s poorest nations, fear of famine looms as its civil war approaches its fourth year. With more than 10,000 people killed, the conflict and a supply blockade have triggered another humanitarian disaster. A staggering 80 percent of its 28 million population rely on charitable assistance. The United Nations warns that an estimated 14 million people are on the brink of starvation.

Compounding this crisis is a deadly cholera outbreak, reported to be the worst in the world, which is escalating at roughly 10,000 suspected cases per week. Its crippled health system and import restrictions make Yemen’s crisis severe.

Nearly 7,000 miles away in Venezuela, another catastrophe continues to unfold. Since the drastic fall in oil prices in 2015, hyperinflation has led to the country’s food shortages, the collapse of its health system and massive social unrest. Venezuela’s middle class has been extinguished, aggravating violence and internal crime and unleashing a massive migratory wave of more than 3 million refugees, the largest in Latin American history.

Meanwhile, in Central America, residents in the Northern Triangle countries of Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador are experiencing youth homicide rates nearly five times what the World Health Organization considers epidemic. And long-term drought conditions are depleting the land and shrinking the harvests and household incomes. In Honduras alone, an estimated 53,000 families are in need humanitarian assistance and thousands of families are fleeing north.

Last October, multiple caravans of Central American migrants, totaling about 100,000 people, made their way to Mexico and the U.S. border in search of asylum and a dignified life.

FINDING GOD IN THE CATASTROPHE OF WORLD WAR II

By Father Louis J. Cameli, S.T.D.

For many years, I taught a course titled “Interiority and Catastrophe: Spiritual Writings from the Second World War” at Mundelein Seminary. I drew primarily from six writers, some well-known and others perhaps not so familiar. They included the Jewish writers Anne Frank, Elie Wiesel and Etty Hillesum, the German Lutheran pastor-theologian Dietrich Bonhoeffer and the Catholic writers Father Alfred Delp, S.J., and Austrian layman-farmer Franz Jaegerstaetter. All of them lived in the catastrophic circumstances of the war, and nearly all of them died at the hands of the Nazi regime. Each of them discovered in their interiority a new depth of spirituality and powerful sources of resilience in the face of desperate circumstances.

Let me share with you just a few insights I gleaned from their experience.

Their sense of God is very complex, no matter what their particular religious affiliation—Jewish or Christian, Protestant or Catholic. The most notable element of this complexity is the mixed sense of the presence and, at the same time, the absence of God. Bonhoeffer reading hymns in his cell has a lively sense of God. Etty Hillesum, too, in a different way, writes of her sense of God within her: “There is really a deep well inside of me. And in it dwells God. Sometimes I am there too. But more often stone and grit block the well, and God is buried beneath. Then He must be dug out again.” In another direction, Elie Wiesel raises the poignant and powerful question in the concentration camp: “Where is God?” At the time of the execution of a child who is left to hang and die over the course of an hour in front of all the camp inmates, Wiesel asks himself, “Where is God?” It is the frightening experience of the absence of God, which can only be raised as a question on the basis of some experience of the presence of God.

Bonhoeffer reading hymns in his cell has a lively sense of God. Etty Hillesum, too, in a different way, writes of her sense of God within her: “There is really a deep well inside of me. And in it dwells God. Sometimes I am there too. But more often stone and grit block the well, and God is buried beneath. Then He must be dug out again.” In another direction, Elie Wiesel raises the poignant and powerful question in the concentration camp: “Where is God?” At the time of the execution of a child who is left to hang and die over the course of an hour in front of all the camp inmates, Wiesel asks himself, “Where is God?” It is the frightening experience of the absence of God, which can only be raised as a question on the basis of some experience of the presence of God.

These writers also re-imagine their relationship with God in a new sense of their own responsibility. In a remarkable way, they understand that human beings may be summoned to take responsibility for God and on behalf of God, to act in loco Dei. Etty Hillesum expresses it this way: “And if God does not help me to go on, then I shall have to help God.” And later, she writes, “I shall merely try to help God as best as I can and if I succeed in doing that, then I shall be of use to others as well.”

In a similar vein, the theologian-pastor Dietrich Bonhoeffer in the course of his imprisonment before his execution develops a theology for “a world come of age.” There ought not to be, he says, “a God of the stopgaps,” that is, a God who just fills in for human incapacity. For Bonhoeffer, we live in an adult world, a world come of age in God’s eyes, and we need to take responsibility for the world entrusted to us by God.

For all the writers, the experience of suffering and imprisonment heightens their sense of human responsibility before God and for God. This was certainly also true for the two Catholic writers, Father Delp and Franz Jaegerstaetter. Father Delp squarely positioned himself against the Nazi regime through his publications. Jaegerstaetter, despite the urging of his bishop to make accommodations, steadfastly held to his conscientious objection and refused to serve in the Wehrmacht, the German army. He took up his responsibility, was executed, and—with great sorrow—left behind his wife and three young daughters. He was beatified in 2007.

These examples of great and suffering people illustrate how the most difficult circumstances indeed, even tragic circumstances, can lead us to new spiritual depths. My study of these writers helped me to understand how the diminishments that we all experience in ourselves and in our world do not necessarily lead to a dead end. They can propel us into a new sense of how God is present and active in our lives and our world, even in his seeming absence. They can also propel us to a new sense of ourselves and how we must assume responsibility and agency to heal our broken world. All this finds resonance in the common prayer book of Jews, Catholics and Protestants, that is, the Book of Psalms, where we hear these words:

“In the day of distress, I will call and surely you will reply ... Show me, Lord, your way so that I may walk in your truth.”

(Ps 86: 7,11)

Father Louis J. Cameli, S.T.D., received his doctorate in theology in 1975 from the Gregorian University in Rome. He is the author of numerous books and articles and is the Cardinal’s Delegate for Christian Formation and Mission in the Archdiocese of Chicago.
The theme for this year’s Annual Catholic Appeal is Come follow me ... and share the Word. For most people, the first part of the theme is clear: It is an invitation to follow Jesus. On the other hand, the second part of the theme about sharing the Word may not be so clear. In fact, it seems very puzzling. How exactly can I share the Word?

That Word, which is the very Word of God, finds its home in the Bible. And for many Catholics in the pew, unlike their Evangelical brothers and sisters, the Bible is intimidating territory that requires special training and expertise. Perhaps, they think, sharing the Word is more the business of preachers and theologians than of ordinary Catholics. And yet the mission and task that Jesus entrusts to everyone in the Church is to share his Word: “Go therefore and make disciples of all nations ...” (Mt 28:19). How can we prepare ourselves to fulfill what he wants us to do?

If we are going to share the Word, first we need to know the Word. And for knowledge of the Word, Bible study is indispensable. Reading is helpful. There are many commentaries on Sacred Scripture. They range from very specialized scientific studies to more accessible reflections. Exploring the Scriptures with other people can also draw us into a greater familiarity with God’s Word.

In many parishes, for example, Bible-study groups use a guide and help each other probe the meaning of the Scriptures. In any case, some study, whether by ourselves or with others, is essential for getting to know the Word of God in the Bible. Still, as important as study is, it is not enough. Another deeper level of knowledge of the Scriptures enables us to share God’s Word with others. This is the knowledge that makes God’s Word a personal and interior reality for us.
WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

I can best explain the personal and interior knowledge of God’s Word with a personal example. In my last four years of study before ordination to priesthood, I was away from home studying in Rome. For four years, I was unable to return to the United States. In the 1960s, before the internet and before easy telephone connections, I depended on letters from home to stay connected.

I was blessed with a mother who wrote to me several times a week. Her letters were a lifeline and a precious connection with family and with what was happening back home. In a particular way, she kept me informed about my four younger siblings. They were much, much younger than me. In fact, they were in the early and middle years of elementary school. I missed them very much and regretted that I could not watch them grow up, play with them or just do the things that an older brother would do. My mother made sure to chronicle their adventures and misadventures. She kept me up to date with their development and their growing pains. I was, and still am, deeply grateful for those letters.

When I received a letter from home, I didn’t just read it and put it aside. I would go back to it, sit with it and think about it. Information about what was happening, of course, was important; but even more important were the feelings and the connections evoked in the letters. For that reason, I would return to what my mother had written and linger over it. A similar kind of process needs to take place if we want to have personal, interior knowledge of God’s Word.

When we receive God’s Word in the Bible as it truly is, that is, as a personal communication and contact with God, then our horizons for understanding the Word open up. We begin to realize that the Bible is not just a compilation of information and facts. It is a vehicle that God gives us to forge a connection with him. Through the Word, we come to know not something about God, but rather we come to know God in himself and who God is for us. Clearly, it’s not just about a letter on a page, but a loving communication and connection that makes all the difference in our lives. Once we have that kind of knowledge, personal knowledge, then we are able to share the Word with others.

Think, for example, of the words of Jesus in Matthew’s Gospel: “Come to me, all you that are weary and are carrying heavy burdens, and I will give you rest.” (11:28) When we linger on these words and hear them as a personal communication very much directed to us, they take on special and powerful meaning. There is, of course, the invitation—come to me. Inside that invitation, however, is an experience that connects with our own. The invitation comes from someone who truly knows our lives, the tiredness and heavy burdens of our lives, someone who has also shared in our struggles, our grief and our pain. And that same person—it is the Lord—offers a promise that stirs our hope: I will give you rest.

To hear this Word and to know it in a personal and interior way enables us to share it with others. We can relay what we have heard and come to know. That may take the form of a compassionate word that we speak to people who struggle and carry heavy burdens. It may also take a nonverbal form. Sharing the Word can be an action that gets us beyond the letter on the page to be mobilized to act on behalf of others. For example, as we share compassion through the good works supported by the Annual Catholic Appeal, we are sharing the Word by lifting heavy burdens and offering a promise of rest. And so, we share the Word by sharing what we have to give.

Come follow me ... and share the Word. Once we grasp that Jesus is speaking directly to us—to you and to me—we will take up his Word. We will try mightily to understand it. We will know its life-giving power in our lives. Then, we will also know that we cannot simply hold on to his Word. We will know that we must share it with others. That is what his followers do.

LETTERS FROM HOME

Father Cameli spent four years away from home studying in Rome when his four younger siblings were still in grade school. His mother wrote him regularly to share the day-to-day life of his family, which was a great comfort to him. He reviewed the letters again and again and likens that process to how one might interiorize God's Word.

Christ preaching in the temple—The Feast of the Mid-Pentecost
KOLBE HOUSE JAIL MINISTRY

Spiritual renewal: A new way forward

By Carla Beecher

KOLBE HOUSE JAIL MINISTRY stands just two short blocks from the white bricks and barbed wire of the Cook County correctional facilities and courthouse at 26th and California, but the journey from imprisonment to a life beyond can be complicated and difficult.

The house staff and volunteers, led by new lay executive director MaryClare Birmingham, strive to help the detainees, as well as their families and those who work at the facility, move from despair to a new, hopeful life and find a new way forward.

“Guilt, shame, anger, fear and feeling thrown away by society are common thoughts for those who’ve been convicted of a crime,” she continued. “We are a community of believers who provide a ministry of presence, compassion and prayer with those marked by incarceration.”

While awaiting trial, some of the facilities’ 5,500 inmates can spend years at the jailhouse, which is supposed to be a temporary holding system. The largest single-site jail in the United States, it employs 3,900 law enforcement officials and 7,000 civilian employees.

When a person returns to society after completing their sentence, they face significant barriers to housing and jobs. “Our staff is so strong and so able,” Birmingham said. Associate Director Deacon Pablo Perez spends half of each day at Cook County Jail as a staff chaplain, the other half in the office counseling people after release. As coordinator of volunteers and outreach, Emily Cortina guides all volunteers and support from parishes and leads the family ministry. Ignatian Service Corps volunteers and interns from Catholic Theological Union supplement the staff in all programs.

Kolbe House has two programs operated outside its California Avenue location. Youths in the Cook County Juvenile Detention Center are visited twice weekly by Kolbe House volunteers led by Father David Kelly, C.S.S.P. Father Kelly directs the Precious Blood Ministry of Reconciliation, which serves as a safe space for healing and restorative justice in the Back of the Yards neighborhood. He has worked for Kolbe House since 1985. On the north end of the Archdiocese, Deacon Bill Gibbons leads a corps of Kolbe House volunteers who pray with the detainees in Lake County Jail every Sunday.
FOUR PILLARS

The ministry’s goal to bear witness to God’s love for the incarcerated, build stronger families and communities and advocate for a more just criminal-justice system is supported by four pillars:

• To reconcile the human bonds that have been broken by sin;
• To make progress toward true repentance, forgiveness and healing by providing a spiritual sanctuary to those affected by crime;
• To be present and listen to the stories of those in jail without passing judgment on them and offer consistent accompaniment; and
• To share a vision of restorative justice, which is supported by priests and religious and lay volunteers throughout the Archdiocese.

As an agency of the Department of Parish Vitality and Mission of the Archdiocese of Chicago, Kolbe House provides in-jail ministry to those in Cook and Lake County jails and in the juvenile detention center. It also offers family members emergency assistance and connections to resources like public aid, counseling and community support. And Kolbe House provides an important re-entry ministry to meet the immediate needs of individuals when they are released, including food, CTA passes, clothing and connections to housing and other support.

DREAMS FOR THE FUTURE: FIRST STOP

“Research shows the first 72 hours after release are critical in terms of lessening the possibility of recidivism,” said Birmingham. The ministry is developing a new program called First Stop to address that window. This program, scheduled to open in late fall, will connect a newly released person with resources for clothing, food, housing, mental and physical health care and employment, as well as offer spiritual and emotional support.

Patron saint of prisoners

Kolbe House is named for the patron saint of drug addicts, prisoners, families and the pro-life movement. St. Maximilian Kolbe was a Polish priest who voluntarily starved to death at Auschwitz in place of another captive during World War II. He was the last of the group of prisoners to remain alive after two weeks of dehydration and starvation when the Nazi guards gave him a lethal injection of carbolic acid. He was said to have raised his left arm and calmly awaited death. Beatified as a “Confessor of the Faith” in 1971 by Pope St. Paul VI, Kolbe was declared a martyr by Pope St. John Paul II and canonized on October 10, 1982.

MASS OF RECONCILIATION

Kolbe House Jail Ministry Mass of Reconciliation is held the first Saturday of each month at 5 p.m. at Assumption BVM Church on 24th Street at California Avenue. The Mass is followed by a potluck meal.

"We want to open up an avenue, a road to re-enter society," Birmingham said. “We are a spiritual renewal center for individuals and for families. We assist and accompany them as they make a new way forward. We are truly grateful for the gifts from the Annual Catholic Appeal and members of the Lumen Cordium Society. They sustain us.”

We promote restoration and reconciliation through outreach, support and accompaniment.”

An active and involved St. Ben’s family

Before St. Benedict Parish’s Joy and Larry Walton moved to the Near North neighborhood 13 years ago, Larry, already a Christian, converted to Catholicism so the couple could be united in their faith. With that commitment, the couple, along with their three children, are active and involved members of St. Benedict’s Parish on Irving Park Road.

The family lives just a few blocks from the church, which was established in 1902, so they consider it their second home. Their youngest, Will, 10, and his sister Lauren, 12, both attend St. Benedict Prep. Eldest sister Kiley, 14, is a freshman at St. Ignatius College Prep. With three school-aged children, Larry has spent a good amount of time coaching St. Ben sports.

“We’ve chosen to get involved in a number of ways,” said Joy, who served first on the Home and School Advisory Board, where she got to know many great families, teachers and administrators. Their pastor at the time was Father Jason Malave, who now serves as the Cardinal’s delegate for the Renew My Church Initiative. Today, St. Ben’s pastor is Father Steve Kanonik.

“When we first moved to the neighborhood, I also served on the Parish Transformation Leadership Committee,” Joy recalled. It was a time when all Chicago parishes went through a process to reflect upon their missions and re-assess their relevance in the community. She served on the Parish Council then and remembers enjoying “getting to know both the school and parish points of view.”

She and her husband support the church’s fundraising activities and have served in leadership roles for various campaigns. They are stalwart supporters and volunteers for the annual spring benefit gala, too.

“I think it’s important to support whatever parish you belong to because it helps form a community,” added Joy. “Living in a large metropolitan area, I’ve found that parishes not only act as your spiritual center of life, but also as a way to build community. We’ve made lifelong friends through our parish.

“St. Ben’s continues to be vibrant, strong and growing,” she continued. “I believe the more we can have faith-filled communities, the safer our neighborhood will be. I would like to see more people come to church and choose Catholic education, but I also acknowledge everyone may not have the means.”

The Waltons consider themselves incredibly blessed and give back with their time and treasure. “Our yearly gift to the Annual Catholic Appeal sets a good example for our children. No matter what organization you choose to support, it’s important to share your blessings. For us, joining the Lumen Cordium Society shows our trust and faith in the Catholic Church,” Joy said.

More than 10,000 youths from five states turned out last October to praise Jesus in song, pray and listen to inspirational speakers as part of the third Holy Fire gathering held at UIC Pavilion. The Archdiocese of Chicago partners with the National Catholic Federation for Catholic Youth Ministry for the local event aimed at youths in grades 6-9. Thank you to the generous donors of the Lumen Cordium Society for helping make this event possible.
